Storytelling Festival of Carolina: October 20-22 Mesmerizing. Captivating. Entertaining.

If you have never experienced the on-stage performance of storytelling, you owe it to yourself and your family to join us for the annual Storytelling Festival of Carolina, to be held October 20th to the 22nd in Laurinburg.

Held downtown at the Storytelling and Arts Center, the festival includes food vendors and a performance stage designed to assure you'll hear the best storytelling this side of Garrison Keillor.

The festival begins on Friday evening at 7:30 at the Center at 131 South Main Street, in Laurinburg. There, visitors can preview each of the festival's featured national and regional tellers in an olio program.

On Saturday and Sunday, get ready to be utterly spell-bound as internationally renowned and honored performers spin their magic and touch every emotion from laughter to horror to tears. (Yes, they're that good.) Best of all, while our event has become a highlight in the world of storytelling (drawing performers and spectators from all over the globe), we have kept the intimate setting that assures you will be one with the performers. The festival runs from 9:30 to 5:00 each day.

Day and multi-day tickets are available. Military and family packages are also available.

For more information visit www.storyartscenter.org or call (910) 277-3599.

Halloween Insanity

Scotland County Parks and Recreation is adding a new scare to its Halloween lineup. The organization has partnered with the Laurinburg/Scotland County Chamber of Commerce and Growing Change, to offer a haunted house/ zombie tour for folks looking for a little excitement.

The event know as "Insanitarium- Zombie Apocalypse" will be held at the Old Wagram Prison. The "haunted prison" will be open on Oct. 20, 21, 28, and 31 from 7:30 until midnight each night. The cost is $10 per person.

The experience will start with a hay rode through the grounds as zombies and paramilitary personnel battle for control. Visitors will then head through the various buildings of the prison - in order to help fight off roaming zombie hords. The total tour should last 30 – 40 minutes and cover much of the 67 acre property.

Proceeds from the four nights will be split between Parks and Recreation and Growing Change. Growing Change is a program that serves at-risk youth, teaching them farming skills. The organization plans to create a sustainable farm and will use the money from Halloween tour for that purpose. MORE >

The Halloween event is somewhat modeled after a combination of the Haunted Prison in Philadelphia and Universal Studios Walking Dead Tour – where guests must navigate through the prison while hungry zombies come out of the nooks and crannies.

Noran Sanford, director of Growing Change said the event will be truly unique because it takes place in a decommissioned prison. "I don't believe any site anywhere can boast offering that experience," Sanford said.

Members of the theater department at St Andrew's University and UNC Pembroke along with youth leaders from Growing Change have "crafted the experience" that they hope the public will enjoy as much as they have. "Our youth leadership had to approve the idea," Sanford said. "It's hard to say who is more excited the youth leaders or the adults. I'd say it's a tossup."

County Parks and Rec. Director Brian Graham says the organizers still need volunteers to help set up the exercise or play the undead. To volunteer or purchase tickets, call Scotland County Parks and Recreation at 910-277-2585.
